

REV. FR. JOHN NGBAPIA

Director, Catholic Organization for Development & Peace
Rector of Diocesan Major Seminary
Catholic Diocese of Tombura - Yambio, South Sudan

Fr John Ngbapia is the current rector of the major seminary of the Tombura- Yambio diocese in South Sudan, the landlocked Christian country plagued by civil war. He is also director of the Catholic Organization for Development & Peace established by his local bishop. Though overwhelmed by the challenge to address the desperate needs of refugees and displaced victims in his area, he has also led successful efforts to assist pregnant mothers considering abortions. LifeSite News has featured Fr John's heroic struggle to fight international efforts to promote chemical abortions in his country to control their population.

His plea for support encourages us to reach out to our suffering Christian brothers and sisters that make up our human family in great need of our compassion. He will speaking about:

- ◆ 18 years of illegal chemical abortions ravaging his country
- ◆ The current civil unrest in South Sudan
- ◆ Displaced people within the Diocese of Tombura-Yambio
- ◆ The heroic struggle of the Church in Africa
- ◆ Blessings, Hope and Vocations amidst the chaos
